Human pyramids: THIS book was written, because there there is absolutely nothing of its kind in technical literature; neither has there been a similar work published, which, really would be a complete and suitable manual for our colleagues, the teachers and instructors in this branch of physical education. I sincerely hope that the teachers and instructors in the schools, or even of smaller organizations, where they have not enough apparatus in their gymnasiums at their disposal, will gladly accept this book, which gives them rich material for regular work in classes, as well as for public exhibition programs and various celebrations. All the groups and pyramids, as you find them in this book, were formed, assembled and executed by the active members of the gymnastic association of Bohemian Sokols, the ""Sokol Chicago"", where I had at my disposal a large number of the best gymnasts and thus had an opportunity to build the most difficult groups and pyramids with most bea
