Diabetes: The way towards Cure book offers a chance for a more balanced, healthy and quality life for those who are suffering from Diabetes Mellitus. It pulls together into one place the vocabulary of Diabetes, to understand the current researches and technical developments related to Diabetes Mellitus. "All types of Diabetes are treatable." There is a great misconception about Diabetes, but why? How is it possible that Diabetes is one of the deadliest disease which effects 8.8% of our population (422 million people!) and still people do not know about its seven different types. "It is estimated that about 80,000 children develop the disease each year." No, Diabetes is not about obesity. It is much more than that. Not to mention that many people having Diabetes are not even fat. "Diabetes medication could treat Alzheimer's!" Diabetes effects women during pregnancy, it effects children from early ages, it is the reason for men to underperform in sexual activities, it is the 5th leading cause related to death of women and the 8th leading cause of death in overall in people's life. "Risk factor: up to one in four pregnancies! depending on the region." Author Zsolt Szemerszky, who is a fellow Type 1 Diabetes sufferer decided to collect all the important information about Diabetes Mellitus and the latest efforts towards cure. "The simplest explanation is that it is far too profitable to treat Diabetes than cure it." Change starts with our willingness to understand what is really happening. Hopefully more and more people will realize at the end of the day that there is always a way to improve our life. Highly recommended reading to people living with Type 1, Type 2, Gestational Diabetes, Alzheimer's, Pre-Diabetes and LADA.
