Islands Across the Universe: An Alien Visitation Leslie V. Langston

This is a novel about a spacecraft having an accident on a ranch in southern New Mexico, with six small aliens on board. They are here on earth to secure seed for plants, animals, and fish to accelerate life development on young planets. Their mission is to develop islands across the universe that can become homes for an expanding population in other solar systems. The aliens are very powerful, yet peaceful in their intentions. These same aliens have visited this ranch two other times over several generations of the ranching family. They become close friends with the family in past visits and also while repairing their shuttlecraft in the ranchers work shop. They have many adventures while here on earth. The ranchers also have many adventures traveling around the earth with the aliens and on their starship. At the end the aliens are ready to announce their presence and develop trade agreements with the people and governments here on earth.
